

Timber Wolf

The Gray Wolf, or Timber Wolf, shares a common ancestry with the domestic dog. Timber Wolves were once abundant over much of North America and Eurasia, but now is widely considered an endangered species. Howling helps pack members communicate effectively in thickly forested areas and over great distances.